INVESTIGATE FATAL ACCIDENT

Media, Aug. 17.—Police today were investigating a fatal grade crossing accident in which Alfred Davis, 29, of Newton Square, a truck driver for the State Highway Department, was killed
when a Pennsylvania Railroad express demolished his truck. Several passengers on the train were cut by flying glass.

SEEK OIL AND STEEL AGREEMENTS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—A determined effort to bring warring factions of the vast oil industry into agreement was made today by Brigadier General Hugh S. Johnson, National Recovery Administrator, while Johnson's aides labored to bring the steel industry under the Blue Eagle.

Having canvassed the oil situation with President Roosevelt, Johnson was to lay the recovery administration's program before 24 of the leaders in the industry. Because of the bitter battle over price fixing in the industry which split even Standard Oil groups, Johnson wrote an oil code himself. While the Recovery Administrator declined confirmation, oil leaders expected proposals for the fixing of a minimum price on crude oil and a scheme designed to cure the ills of overproduction and huge surpluses.

Price fixing however brought the administration face to face with the tariff question under the Recovery Act.

The administration was continuing its drive to bring "big steel" and coal into the fold. Despite the fact that Deputy Administrator K. M. Simpson
said the steel leaders had shown no change in their attitude, the entire administration was determined to breach the gap between the industry and labor.

MACDONALD "CUTS" VACATION

London, England, Aug. 17.—Cutting his vacation short to plunge into affairs of state, Prime Minister Macdonald conferred with important British government department heads today
on the Austro-German "back-fence
war" and the massacre of 300 Assyrians in Iraq. It was stated on the Prime Minister's behalf that he had interrupted his vacation in Scotland because of his convictions that personal contact with White Hall is necessary, rather than because of a specific emergency.

TREVOSE SOCIETY HEARS A TALK ON EVERGREENS

Hugh D. Graham, Southampton, Tells of Varieties,
Time to Plant, Etc.

SHOW ON SEPT. 15, 16

TREVOSE, Aug. 17.—An instructive talk on the proper planting of evergreens, something of their history and importance in American horticulture,
was given before over 200 members and guests of the Trevese Horticultural Society in the community hall,
here, Tuesday night.

Hugh D. Graham, Southampton,
spoke on the history of evergreens,
telling that they were grown principally in Holland until a few years ago,
and adding "But today America is able to supply the rest of the world with almost every known variety of this popular type of shrubbery."

The speaker cautioned against buying evergreens without regard for location. Many evergreens perish not because they do not have the proper soil and attention, but simply because they were not given the proper location. In another spot in a lawn they might have done well.

Mr. Graham described the two outstanding kinds of evergreens—the broad-leaf and cone-bearing varieties.
He also classified rhododendrons as belonging to the broad-leaf branch of this family. According to Mr. Graham six or eight varieties, which have been developed, will shortly make their appearance on the market. One of the newest creations will include a silver back leaf with a dark green face. The other kind will have bright yellow blooms.

Rhododendrons, contrary to the opinion of most gardeners, should not be planted in deep soil, but close to the surface. They should be given a reasonable amount of protection.

Among the types of evergreens recommended were yew trees. He pointed out that this tree is not subject to either tree blight or scale. Another type is the hemlock, which can be grown in almost any location.

Mr. Graham predicted that in a few years the evergreen will be the most popular type of hedge, first on account of its beauty and secondly, owing to its comparative low cost.

Evergreens can be planted almost any time of the year, but the speaker preferred to plant them in July and August.

In behalf of the Trevese Fall Flower show, which will be held at the Community Hall on September 15 and 16,
Mrs. Henry T. Parry, Langhorne, explained the addition of several new classes contained in this year's catalogue. A new class contained in which there will be no individual competition, but the society will compete as a whole, will be the "Corner representing a flower shop." Other classifications will include an arrangement for a reception table; and a still life, and other classes.

President Garrett B. Clark appointed Harry Booth, Mary Smith, Mr.
Gemming, Harry R. Mitchell and Paul Deigendesch members of the nominating committee.

The next meeting will be held on Tuesday, Sept. 19.

A Dublin florist, Mr. Myers, displayed the latest kind of gladioli, one single blue spike of this bloom. Attention was also called to the display of an artichoke bloom. Mr. Myers was given recognition for his display by the society.

MEETING TONIGHT

There will be a meeting of the Lower Bucks County League tonight at 8.15 in the William Penn Fire House, Hulmeville.

BOMB ON DYERS' LAWN

Philadelphia, Aug. 17.—The last cleaning and dyeing plant to remain open in Philadelphia in the face of a general strike, was closed today after a dynamite bomb was tossed into the lawn of Bernard Shotkin, its owner,
and windows in four of his agencies were broken. Policemen stationed at the residence stamped out the fuse.
The bomb hurlers escaped. The lack of a percussion cap would have prevented an explosion of the two sticks of dynamite. Meanwhile efforts to settle the strike collapsed as the cleaners and dyers association remained steadfast in its refusal to recognize the union. Shotkin, however, agreed to join with the association in its protection effort.

COMMUNISM SEEN IN CUBA

Havana, Cuba, Aug. 17.—The red flag of communism cast its shadows over Cuba today as the administration of President Carlos Manuel de Cespedes came to grips with striking harbor workers. The stevedores announced they would continue their strike until granted satisfaction. The strike has prevented the unloading of ships and has tied up distribution of imported goods. At a joint meeting today, representatives of the stevedores, shipping companies and the government will confer and seek a solution of the tangle. Concerned over this obstacle to a speedy return to normal business
following the overthrow of ex-President Machado, several government officials expressed the fear communists were behind the labor troubles, menacing the efforts at reconstruction.

HOLD IN WOMAN'S DEATH

Camden, N. J., Aug. 17.—A man identified by police as Leo Darr, 39, of Gettysburg, Pa., was held today for questioning in connection with the slaying of Miss Anna Ulm, 45, in a thicket near Dover, N. J. Lawrence P.
Doran, chief of the Camden County detectives said he answered the description of a vagrant who lived near the scene of the slaying. Miss Ulm was found lashed to a tree, her skull crushed and neck broken. Darr, who was given a ten-day vagrancy sentence
after being arrested for mauling to himself on the street, was believed, by police, to be abnormal. He carried several clean handkerchiefs in a sugar sack. He was held because of his hesitancy in answering police questions as to his whereabouts on the night of the slaying.

850 MERCHANTS FAIL TO PAY MERCANTILE TAX

Delinquents Have Only Short
Time in Which to Pay

COSTS MUCH HIGHER

DOYLESTOWN, Aug. 17.—There are approximately 850 merchants in Bucks county who have failed to pay their mercantile tax, according to the reports at the office of County Treasurer Leidy M. Landis.

Alvin T. Lippincott, who has charge of the mercantile tax accounts at the County Treasurer's office, said today that the total number of taxables in Bucks county is 3000. The delinquents have but a short time in which to pay the tax. There is no exemption in this line, it was pointed out by Mr. Lippincott.

Those who fail to meet the payments due will find it more expensive when the collection is handed to Justices of the Peace for collection.

The state department directs after August 31 all delinquents shall be placed immediately in the hands of collectors. There will be no extra day allowance. Promptly on September 1
the force of the County Treasurer will prepare the list for the collectors.

A rush to pay the tax is expected within the next two weeks in order to save the extra penalty which will be placed on the merchants by the collector.

ed in by the Pennsylvania Nursery-men's Association was enjoyed by Mr.

BLAME A $15,000 FIRE, PINEVILLE, ON INCENDIARY

Barn Falls Prey, Despite Vigorous Campaign in County

A SHORTAGE OF WATER

2 Horses, 9 Cows, Prize Bull, 400 Chickens Perish At Erickson Farm

PINEVILLE, Aug. 11.—Despite a vigorous campaign launched against incendiarism by Bucks County farmers,
another barn fire entailing $15,000
damage on the farm of M. M. Erickson, here, today, was blamed on an incendiary by County Fire Marshal William
L. Stackhouse.

Forced to stand by helpless because of lack of water, firemen from adjoining towns were unable to check the blaze in which two horses, 9 registered cows and a prize bull perished together with three pigs and 400 chickens.

The flames also destroyed farm machinery, about 50 tons of grain, a garage and a truck.

Following an investigation today,
County Fire Marshal William L. Stackhouse, of Hulmeville, and state troopers, said the fire had been started in the hay loft by an incendiary. The blaze was the 57th barn fire in the county within 13 months.

Authorities believe most of them were caused by an incendiary for whose apprehension a $500 reward
was offered last week.

Fearing the loss of their property,
farmers throughout the county are remaining awake nights to guard their farms with shotguns.

A COMMENDABLE AIM

The advantages to be gained from a uniform motor act are too apparent to need argument.

For years there has been agitation along this line and some active efforts have been put forth to obtain such an act. Little progress, however, has been made, due to a variety of causes.

The American Legislators Association now has put its hand to the task. It has announced that two regional conferences representing 28 states will be held this fall to promote the plan. One of the conferences will be held in Salt Lake City. It will be sponsored by the Utah Legislature and the legislators' association. Represented in it will be 11 western states. Harrisburg, Pa., will be the scene of the other conference, in which 17 northeastern states will be represented.

If these conferences prove successful, it is to be hoped the remainder of the states will join the movement. At present there are 49 different sets of motor vehicle regulations, there being one for each state and one for the District of Columbia. This condition causes confusion and annoyance.

The American Legislators Association is composed of members of legislatures of the various states. In tackling the uniform motor act problem, it is undertaking a work of nationwide interest. Should it succeed in its purpose, it would have rendered a service of major importance to the country as a whole.

MEETING A KIDNAP THREAT

New Hampshire is treating a kidnapping threat in a manner that will discourage kidnapping and disarm the kidnapper if anything will. The crime is treated there as its enormity demands.

With swift and dramatic action the New Hampshire authorities sent a force of national guardsmen, sheriffs and state police to surround a girls' camp when a kidnapping threat was made against one of the campers. If the threat was real, it was thwarted in a way that confounded the criminals.

Kidnapping will not be wiped out until the constituted authorities show a grim and angry determination to fight this type of criminal with every resource at their command. It doesn't require some brilliant new technique.

Knowing that it can count upon the help of society, the law should not find it difficult to find the lair of a kidnapping gang, especially when it is some mountain recess or farmhouse. Posses sufficiently large to scour every foot of ground for hundreds of miles are not impossible when the people are aroused. The guilty are certain to attract suspicion.

There is no more effective weapon against the kidnapper than newspaper publicity. It makes of all the world a posse and an amateur detective. The alarm cannot be given too soon, nor can it be given too much prominence on the front page.

Riches may have wings but they are no homing pigeon.

If practice makes perfect there ought to be a good many farmers who can equal that Kentuckian by yelling loud enough to be heard eight miles away. The greater part of their time for the last two or three years has been devoted to yelling.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX

"We can't allow you to get mixed up in this, Miss Luneska," he said quietly and politely.

Leni, with her whole world in ruins, put a smile on her lips. The smile had nothing whatever to do with what was occurring in her heart.

Her weaker inner self was reeling from the blow. Under the smile her brilliant white teeth were clenched. But she did not speak. She sat entirely motionless, her hands clasped around her soft silken knees, her eyes misted.

"Can't you see, darling, that this is going to be a terrible scandal?" asked Wingate faintly. "If any of it rubs off on you it will be positively ruinous. Absolutely! I wouldn't dream of letting you blight your career. You mean too much to the screen—far too much to your public!"

"You fool, you fool, you fool! Leni wanted to cry aloud. Can't you understand, you idiot, that your talk of admiration and the screen and the public is nothing but stifling smoke rising from the funeral pyre of my dead ambitions? Do you think you can say anything with that loose, funny-looking mouth that could be important to me—or to Lucky Cavanaugh?"

Yet, strength and power was coming back to her. From where, Heaven alone knew. It poured into the vacuum of her breast, gathered into a deep and expanding pool of vibrating energy that her heart could take hold of and pump through every artery of her body. "Don't worry about it, please, Ned," said the smiling shell of herself. "Everything will turn out all right."

"That's the spirit!" cried Wingate. Gerstenfeld suddenly was ignoring Leni. He picked up the blue covered contract from the table, folded it and restored it to the envelope.

"Under the circumstances," he said aridly, "we may not be justified in offering this contract to Miss Luneska. I'll have to take it up with the company."

Leni felt she knew what he was thinking. The value of a motion picture star varied almost from day to day. A breath of scandal reacted directly upon the box office. No other business on earth was like this.

"It doesn't matter at all about the contract," she said to Gerstenfeld. "I wasn't going to sign it anyway."

He did not even turn his head to look at her. The commanding power of his eyes drew to a focus that centered upon Ned Wingate.

"Get out!"

Wingate twisted his head with a bird-like motion as though he had not heard a word. "How's that?"

"Get out. I want to talk to Miss Luneska alone."

Wingate's long lips gave a twitch of embarrassment. He was a vain man and would have found it much easier if Gerstenfeld had troubled to be just a little polite. As it was, he tried to pass it off as a bit of a joke.

"Right-of! But if she talks you into doubling the salary, old fellow, don't blame me!"

His effort at lightness thudded to the floor. With a bow to Leni and a smile which meant to be humorous to Gerstenfeld, he took himself out of the room. At the door he paused.

"I just happened to think," he said. "I hadn't better see our press department and ask them to soft pedal everything?"

"Nothing of the kind," Gerstenfeld tossed negligently, over his shoulder. "Just keep your mouth shut."

As soon as Leni was alone in the room with Gerstenfeld a nameless tension increased perceptibly. He took a step forward. Even before he spoke, the dull lights in his eyes began to glow.

"Now we're alone," he said coolly. "We'll cut out the foolishness."

"I'm sorry—there's really nothing far us to talk about, Mr. Gerstenfeld. Whatever has happened is my own private affair. It does not concern the studio in the least."

Nevertheless, something was disconcerting her. A mental flow from Gerstenfeld kept pressing in on Leni's senses.

"Why do you think I stayed here to talk to you?"

"I don't know," said Leni frankly. "It's not on account of your contract—I don't give a rap about that."

"What then?"

Herman Gerstenfeld took a step closer. There was nothing about him of charm or good looks. An inconspicuous man with a tired face and dry, neglected hair on an ordinary head. A man to pass unnoticed in a crowd except for the gathered concentration in those dark and glinting eyes.

"I'm interested in just one thing in this whole business," he said levelly. "I'm interested in you. You're not going to get away. You belong. You're one of us. You and I and all of us in this mad business are like a little tribe of people. We stick together. The other people—the outsiders—they are enemies. You can't get away from the pictures even if you wanted to. It's in your blood."

Leni stood up straight and faced him.

"Whatever you say has nothing to do with it," she uttered steadily. "Don't fool yourself," Gerstenfeld returned, holding her with his eyes. "I know more about you than you know about yourself. Whether you realize it or not, you and I are tangled up together. I'm not talking about studio business. I'm talking about you—and me!"

Gerstenfeld's words hit hard. They stung her with surprise. She had never dreamed that he was interested in her as a woman. He was standing directly in front of her and she had the sensation that she was close to a bare wire heavily charged with electricity.

"You might as well get ready to wake up," he declared, a pressure in his voice.

The faint smile still clung to her lips, but there was no amusement behind it.

"Please—will you leave me alone?"

She tried to speak with noise but there was a gulp in her throat. Every nerve was alert with vitality but somehow a defenseless against the nameless attack Gerstenfeld made.

"You're going to wake from this illusion that you're in love with that man Cavanaugh," he said in a whispering voice. "The trouble with you is you've jumped 's track and don't know it. Sit down and listen to me."

Leni found herself obeying him.

Gerstenfeld had unleashed something within himself that had changed a cold, mathematical machine into a relentless and pulsating male animal whose newly-revealed personality swept around Leni and threatened every moment to seize command of everything.

"If I saw you stumbling into a fatal accident, I'd snatch you back," Gerstenfeld said.

It's attitude, the flash of his eyes, the snap of his voice, bordered upon the contemptuous. His face had grown paler, his body appeared to have no temperature at all but Leni had the distinct impression that a white heat seethed inside him.

"You are a woman and therefore are not always in sound mind. Your imagination runs away with you. For a woman like you, life is going to be miserable—unless you stay where you belong."

Leni made a forced effort to combat him. Deliberately she lifted her eyebrows, an effort at skepticism.

"Are you, by any chance, trying to save me from myself?" she inquired with a hauteur that shook a little.

"There's no one else to save you from, except yourself," shot back Gerstenfeld. "You have beauty, talent—maybe genius, but no brain. Of yourself you can do nothing. It requires the combined resources of the fourth largest industry to make a place in which you can function. Before you got into pictures, what kind of a life did you lead?"

Leni could tell from the fling in her temples that some of the color was leaving her face. This man, she thought, has found out somehow about my past. It gave her a feeling of cold indecency and she wrapped herself in a quick lie.

"I lived quite comfortably at home," she said.

Gerstenfeld searched her with his eyes and she turned her gaze away.

"Come—be honest! That's not true, is it?"

Without lifting her lids she answered him. "No."

"I knew it was a lie. How? I can't tell you—I just know. I sense those things. There was something—not pretty. You were out on your own—you bucked the game without our vast machinery behind you. It was an awful business. There's only one place on earth for you—one island of safety. The pictures!"

Leni would have got up and left the room. The instinct to escape, for flight, awakened and she rose to her feet.

"What," she asked in a thin voice, "does all this get us?"

Gerstenfeld looked at her and put a hand on her shoulder. It was the first time he had ever touched her. They had never even shaken hands. He pushed her downward, backward into a chair, gently yet definitely.

"Sit there and listen," spoke Gerstenfeld. "If you walk out on me you'll walk straight back into your past. I'm telling you and I know."

But there was still fight left in her. "Only fools know everything," she retorted.

"I know more about pictures and picture people than anybody else in the world," said Gerstenfeld. He might have been stating that two and two make four, so lacking was egotism in his voice.

NAMES

you should know

YOU like to know names that everybody knows—name of the man who tied lightning to a kite; name of the man who watched a teakettle and went out and made an engine. Just knowing such names gives you pleasure.

Yet there are names that thousands of people know that can give you much more pleasure in a much more personal way. Names that stand for the best things to eat, to wear, to sleep on. Names, that if connected with the salad dressing, hat, fountain pen you select—or any other desirable thing—mean it is most desirable. Names written large in ADVERSESMENTS.

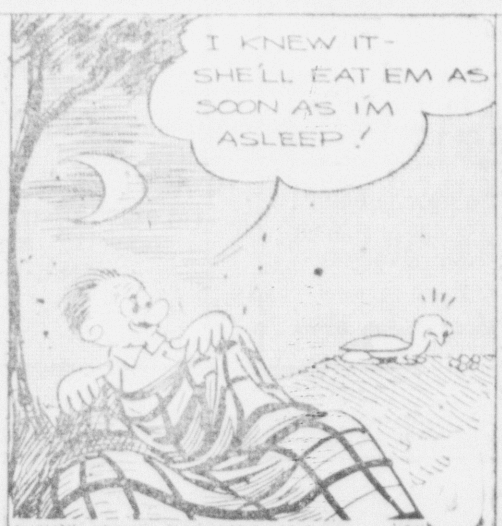

Advertisements tell why those are wise names for you to know. Why such names greet you in the best grocery, department and hardware stores. Why those names are in the buying vocabulary of thousands... are believed in by thousands... justify belief!

Read the advertisements. Don't ask vaguely in a store for "cold cream," "a skillet," "a vacuum cleaner." Ask for So-and-So's Cold Cream, So-and-So's Skillet, So-and-So's Vacuum Cleaner. Use the names, you have learned through advertisements, that stand for the product that means most to you and most to everybody.

Stairs Made Her Gasp For Breath

Penalty of Excess Fat

Although she has lost but 7 lbs. of her overweight, this woman finds that 7 lbs. has made a remarkable difference to her.

Her letter reads: "I am 53 years old and my height is 5 ft. Last year I weighed 154 lbs. I have been taking a half-teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts, making no change in my diet. Now I am less round the hips, and only weigh 147 lbs. dressed. But I feel lighter and can now run upstairs, which before used to make me gasp for breath. Everyone says how well and fit I look."—(Miss) J. H.

Kruschen is an ideal blend of 6 separate salts, which help body organs to function properly and maintain a splendid degree of health—it builds up energy and strength while you're reducing to normal weight.

Get Kruschen Salts at any live druggist in the world—a jar lasts 4 weeks and costs not more than 85 cents.—(Adv.)

BEWARE of this HITCH-HIKER

His Name is

"HI" DRIVING COST

When you get off the CONCRETE, HIGH DRIVING COST gets in. Repair bills on your car go up. You buy more gasoline, use up more tires. Depreciation is faster.

And that applies to any type of road that is LESS THAN CONCRETE!

Prove it? It's been proved—by government and state engineers who have been making impartial road tests since 1917. They have measured—in dollars and cents—what it costs to drive on each type of road. They've proved that it costs less to drive on CONCRETE than any other type of road.

That's why "cheap" roads are really expensive! For the real cost of a road is the cost of building and maintenance. Plus the cost of using it. CONCRETE ROADS save money. They cost less to maintain. They lower the cost of automobile operation. Insist on CONCRETE for economy, permanence and driving comfort.

PORTLAND CEMENT ASSOCIATION
1315 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

HERE'S HOW

Less-Than-Concrete Roads Increase Driving Costs

IT COSTS, on the Average:

3/4¢

1/2¢ more per mile to drive on bituminous macadam than on concrete.

1 1/4¢

1 1/2¢ more per mile to drive on gravel than on concrete.

2¢ more per mile to drive on an earth road than on concrete.

For further information write the Cement Service Man, care of Portland Cement Association.

85% to 90% of the money spent on Concrete Construction goes to Labor!

NEWPORT MEN'S CLUB STOPS JEFFERSON A. C.

The Newport Road Men's Club, of the Bristol Suburban League stopped the Jefferson A. C., of the Bristol Twilight League, last night on St. Ann's field. Final score was 5-3. Five runs in the sixth inning when Narcisi weakened enabled the Newporters to chalk up the win.

Up until the sixth Narcisi had blanked the visitors with three hits and was breezing the opponents in fast order. He blew up in the last frame and before the third out was recorded five runs had crossed the plate.

"Milt" Davis was the winning hurler, allowing the Bristol team only five hits, two of which went to Tosti.

Tonight on St. Ann's field, the Jefferson A. C. will meet the Trenton All-Scholastics of the North Trenton Twilight League. The Mules will use their regular line-up with Fry on the firing line.

HIBERNIANS TO BATTLE HULMEVILLE TONIGHT

Tonight on the Hulmeville field, the Bristol Hibernians will meet the Hulmeville A. C. club. It will be the last chance of any Bucks County League team to break any of the records set by the second half champs.

Hulmeville has won twelve straight contests. Black has won six consecutive games and four of these have been shutouts. The last six teams have failed to count on Hulmeville while in the last five only seven hits have been made. Watson, the other Hulmeville hurler, has won five straight contests. He will probably face the Hibos.

The game is the scheduled fray of last week which was rained out and will be a warm-up of the playoff series.

Announce New Low Pressure Auto Tire

Announcement of a new Airwheel or low pressure automobile tire providing riding comfort comparable to that of over-stuffed easy chairs is made by J. E. May, sales manager of the tire department of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co.

Eight major improvements are listed as features of the new tire including greater cubic air capacity; more rubber in tread and sidewalls, larger cross sections; balanced design; flatter, wider tread; powerful breaker strip; natural shape and more non-skid and total tread mileage plus All-Weather Center Traction and of course shock-absorbing Supertwist cord construction.

"Goodyear's new low pressure or

Airwheel tire has an interesting engineering development background dating to February 1929 when the tire was first introduced for airplanes, later that same year being used on Good-year exhibition buses; and afterwards on highway test cars; used as change-over equipment and announced to the public in the fall of 1931.

Important features of the new tire are extreme comfort, made possible because of the minimum air pressure and maximum cushioning; added safety through additional non-skid design and Supertwist cord construction; better performance, with absence of vibration, strain, preventing exhaustion to the driver; and finally appearance—the Airwheel retains its shape throughout its life and its sidewalls readily cleaned and re-striped in silhouette.

A majority of 1932 smaller car models can be equipped with Airwheels of 6.50-16 inch size or they can be fitted with the new tire in 7.00-15 inch size which is the oversize in low pressure balloons for these same cars. Goodyear also makes the 7.00-15 and 7.50-15 sizes for several other cars in the larger popular priced group to be used as changeover equipment.

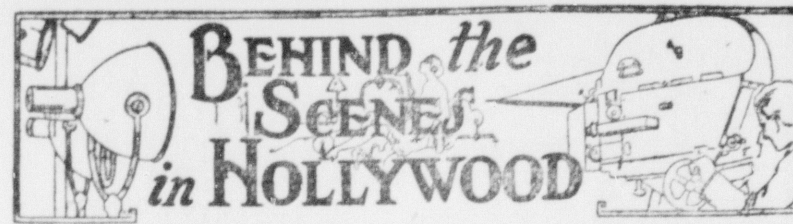

In the new car field there are a number of manufacturers whose 1933 models list the Airwheel tire as original equipment and others as optional equipment for new automobiles, chiefly as a result of the car owners request for them.

MACHADO FAMILY IN PHILA.

Philadelphia, Aug. 17.—Entrusting themselves temporarily to the protection of the fortified Philadelphia police, the family of Gerardo Machado, deposed president of Cuba, remained under heavy guard today at the Pennsylvania Hotel, awaiting further orders from the overthrown ruler. In a brief radio telephone conversation from Nassau, in the Bahamas where he fled, Machado instructed his family to remain here until more definite plans can be formulated. Meanwhile, police, detectives and plain clothes men were on the alert for expatriates, exiled during the Machado regime, who may seek to cause vengeance on Senora Elvira Machado, the former president's wife, three daughters, sons-in-law and five grandchildren.

FOOD MATERIALS IN GREENS ESSENTIAL TO BEST OF HEALTH

HOLLYWOOD — Sex pictures make money but a good comedy team lines a producer's pockets with gold. Universal is launching another one soon in Edna May Oliver and Edward Everett Horton.

The two players were signed yesterday by Carl Laemmle Jr. to make a series of three feature pictures, the first to go into production early in October. These films will be the same homey type of comedies that ZaSu Pitts and Slim Summerville have co-starred in so successfully at Universal for the past two years.

Here's a bit of irony. One of the authors assigned to write the first story is John Bright who, with Kubeck Glasmon, turned out those blisteringly realistic underworld stories for James Cagney.

Although appreciating the honor, Grover Jones and Bill McNutt have learned that their new contract to write, direct and supervise their pictures is not without its disadvantages.

The other day they hit a tough situation in the story. Hours later it was still tough. Putting it down on paper finally and only half satisfied with the result, McNutt suddenly turned to Jones.

"Say," he exclaimed, "who are we going to blame for this?"

Intimates of Al Jolson will tell you that the singing star would like to buy the Marcus Loew home on Long Island and persuade Ruby Keeler to give up Hollywood and live there with him.

Blonde Claire Windsor told reporters she was through with men, but only a few hours later, in San Francisco, she ran up a long distance telephone bill talking to C. Roy Gilliland at the Hollywood Plaza Hotel. Mr. Gilliland is from Oregon and is wealthy.

Marion Davies will have Raoul Walsh for her new picture, "Going Hollywood." The star is very busy these days rehearsing and having fittings in preparation for the film.

That Lillian Harvey has lived in every country in Europe except Russia?

The stories of Bing Crosby's objections to being starred are not phony. The crooner refused to sign his new Paramount contract until the studio agreed to scrap advertising posters giving him stellar billing in "Too Much Harmony."

But the champion crooner, they would have you believe, is Donald Novis. Appearing at a local theatre, the singer had one number almost spoiled by a crying baby. When the child's mother rose to take it out of the theatre, Novis stepped to the footlights and called to her:

"What's the baby's favorite lullaby?"

Overawed, the mother finally stammered: "Mighty Like a Rose."

Giving the orchestra the signal, Novis went into the number. Four bars later, the baby was only sobbing. In another minute it was entirely quiet and the mother was able to resume her seat.

Here's a hot one for the gossips. Gary Cooper beamed Sandra Shaw to the Miramar on Sunday evening.

Peggy Joyce swept in late to this popular dance spot, inspected and turned down the only two tables left and swept out again without pausing. Though orchidless, La Joyce was stunning in a blue gown and a large, drooping hat.

Another eyebrow lifter is that several of the most famous local football stars have been acting as bodyguards to studio technicians who did not walk out in the strike.

Marion Davies will have Raoul Walsh for her new picture, "Going Hollywood." The star is very busy these days rehearsing and having fittings in preparation for the film.

vitamins than cooked greens—richer because cooking destroys two vitamins, B and C, and because the juices, which contain the water-soluble vitamins (B and C) and the soluble mineral salts, cannot escape when the leaves are eaten raw. Therefore, says the nutritionist again, eat plenty of raw green cabbage, plenty of green lettuce, and you can even eat raw spinach. In any case, never cook greens long—though the harsher leaves like kale require more cooking than others. As a rule, however, cook greens just enough to wilt them—they taste better then, anyway.

If you doubt this, try it. Put the greens in a kettle, with very little water—for spinach and dandelions, no water at all except what clings to the leaves after washing. Don't put the lid on the kettle—cooking greens covered spoils the fresh green color. Let them heat for a few minutes, stirring occasionally until they are just wilted.

Greens wilted in hot, cooked salad dressing make another interesting dish. And, of course, there are creamed greens, such as turnip tops or kale or spinach, chopped, cooked a few minutes, and served in white sauce.

A salad of mixed greens—crisp raw lettuce, parsley, cress, shredded green cabbage, served with French dressing, is another attractive and useful addition to the commonplace meal of bread, meat, and potatoes.

Then chop and serve with salt pork or lard for seasoning, or with lemon juice or vinegar, salt and pepper.

For pan-fried greens, first crisp salt pork or bacon in the pan, then put in the greens and turn them over and over until they are wilted in the hot salt fat. Green cabbage, cut in half-inch ribbons, and heated until just tender but still crisp is particularly good in this way. Some of the harsher greens, such as kale, may need to be covered to decrease cooking time.
